

CSA Safety Awards Announced For 2006

Paula Allman

Editor, Knowledge

U.S. Army Combat Readiness Center

Congratulations to the winners of this year's Chief of Staff, Army Safety Awards. The Army operates the largest and most comprehensive safety program in the world, and this past year was an active and successful year. Deployments are up and the OPTEMPO is high, yet thanks to the professionalism and quality of Army leaders and Soldiers, missions are being completed safely and to standard. These units are crossing the line of departure and arriving in battle positions on time, meeting all pickup, landing zone and convoy checkpoint times and doing it all safely.

Excellent equipment, solid doctrine and great Composite Risk Management training programs significantly contributed to the accident reduction in fiscal 2006. These units' safety programs were selected as the best in the Army. The Director of Army Safety credits these warfighters' solid leadership, in-rank discipline and mission focus with directly contributing to an unprecedented year in accident prevention.

The winners of this year's CSA Safety Awards include seven recipients whose safety efforts clearly reflect their significant contributions to preserving Army combat readiness:

- CSA Army Headquarters Safety Award: Eighth U.S. Army
- CSA Exceptional Organizational Safety Award, Division: 377th Theater Support Command, Third Army, U.S. Army Central
- CSA Exceptional Organizational Safety Award, Brigade: FIRES Brigade, 4th Infantry Division (Mechanized), FORSCOM
- CSA Exceptional Organizational Safety Award, Battalion: U.S. Army Medical Material Center, Southwest Asia, Third Army, U.S. Army Central
- CSA Exceptional Organizational Safety Award, Garrison: Headquarters Command Battalion, Fort Meade, Md., IMCOM
- CSA Individual Award of Excellence in Safety, Officer: CW2 Faaruwq Muhammad, U.S. Army Medical Material Center, Southwest Asia, Third Army, U.S. Army Central
- CSA Individual Award of Excellence in Safety, NCO/Enlisted: SSG Henry Moye, Headquarters, 1st Battalion, 10th Aviation, 10th Mountain Division, FORSCOM

The awards have been given to the recipients' higher headquarters for presentation. For more information on the CSA Safety Awards, visit the U.S. Army Combat Readiness Center Web site at <https://crc.army.mil>.